Douglas McKay (bottom, left) as secretary of interior, and General Motors president Charles E. Wilson (right) as defense secretary. All three appointees announced their acceptance.

Eisenhower Cabinet Picks Are Greeted With Approval

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — President-elect Eisenhower's first three cabinet selections, greeted with approval by Republicans and Democrats, seemed assured of quick Senate confirmation.

The appointments which Eisenhower said Thursday he will send to Capitol Hill after his inauguration Jan. 20:

Secretary of State—John Foster Dulles, former Republican senator and one-time adviser to the State Department during Democratic administrations.

Secretary of defense—Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corp.

Secretary of the interior—Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon.

First reaction from foreign sources on Dulles' selection was favorable.

Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo said it will be "very favorably received" by the Chinese Nationalist regime.

IN TOKYO, major newspapers splashed the announcement across their front pages, recalling that Dulles was the chief architect of the peace treaty which restored Japan's sovereignty.

Wilson's appointment was hailed by Republican Senators Homer Ferguson of Michigan and Karl Mundt of South Dakota. Ferguson said he believes Wilson will do "an outstanding job." Mundt said the Defense Department needs Wilson's "type of business genius."

Accused Ax Slayer Said Sane Now

NEW LEXINGTON, Nov. 21 — Vincent Nash, 58, accused ax killer of his wife and four children, will stand trial for the crime after eight years in Lima State Hospital.

Nash was sent to the institution after he was declared legally insane in 1944 by Dr. R. E. Bushong, director of the hospital. Dr. Bushong has submitted a report which says Nash is now sane and capable of standing trial. The trial is scheduled for the first week in December. Nash is charged with the murder of his wife, Emma and three girls and a boy ranging in age from five to 22 years. The original indictment said the five were murdered while they slept in the Nash home in Crooksville.

Western Allies Near Accord On Peace Plan

India's Compromise Gets Airing To Crack Korea POW Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 21 — The Western Allies moved closer to agreement Friday on changes they hoped would bring full support, including that of the U. S., behind India's compromise plan for ending the Korean war prisoner deadlock.

An eighteen-nation group headed by the U. S., Britain and France met behind closed doors to work over amendments to a plan submitted Wednesday by India's V. K. Krishna Menon. Other nations in the group are Canada, Australia, Turkey, Denmark and Colombia.

They have as a working basis changes suggested Thursday by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who said the Indian plan brings the UN nearer to agreement on the one outstanding issue holding up an armistice in Korea, the prisoner of war problem.

Strong American objections to the original Indian resolution (that it was ambiguous and would not work) had threatened a serious split among the 21 allies backing a U. S. - drafted Korean resolution which the Soviet bloc in the UN already has rejected.

nominee, commented that Wilson is "one of our great industrial leaders," adding:

"I know nothing to stand in the way of his confirmation. I know Mr. Dulles and I admire him greatly. He is a very able man." Few lawmakers were acquainted with McKay, but several of them expressed pleasure that a Westerner had been chosen for the interior post.

Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman said of his successor: "A very fine choice. Gov. McKay is a fine man, very capable."

Keller Curve Again Scene Of Smashup

Pickaway County authorities now are beginning to count on a serious accident on a dangerous curve at the farm of John Keller on Route 104 as a routine nightly occurrence.

Another driver was injured late Thursday night when his heavily-laden tractor-trailer outfit failed to negotiate the curve and toppled onto its side.

The accident was the third on the sharp curve in the last four days and the sixth within the last two weeks, including one proving fatal to a Chillicothe man.

Thursday's accident happened at about 8:15 p. m. when an outfit driven south by D. P. Hataway of Charlotte, S. C., went out of control and overturned.

STATE HIGHWAY Patrolman Gene Miller said the driver stated he met a north-bound car in the curve and swung wide to avoid a collision. His truck hit the ruts where a tractor-trailer rig overturned Wednesday night and spilled onto its right side.

The outfit was loaded with about 30,000 pounds of dairy products. Cab of the rig was demolished, while the trailer was badly damaged.

Hataway was treated in Berger hospital for a scalp laceration and a puncture wound of the forehead.

State officials were being sought Friday to investigate the dangerous curve and make recommendations.

Byrnes To Shun Any GOP Position

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 21 — Gov. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina says he would "under no circumstances accept any appointment" in the federal government.

Byrnes made the statement Thursday in answer to reports he might get a cabinet post under Republican President - elect Dwight Eisenhower. Byrnes, a Democrat, was an Eisenhower supporter during the presidential campaign. The governor said he had not been asked by Eisenhower to accept any cabinet appointment.

Dulles Expected To Set Up Super Council To Mastermind Cold War

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — (AP) — Creation of a super council in the Eisenhower administration to mastermind a Cold War offensive against the Kremlin seems assured by the announcement that John Foster Dulles will be the next secretary of state.

Dulles, like President-elect Eisenhower who announced his selection for the post Thursday, has made clear that his first major new goal in foreign policy will be to wrest the initiative in the global conflict from Russia.

Dulles has declared that one way to go about this is to set up a cabinet council, including not only some regular cabinet members but also "ministers without portfolio" charged only with high-level cold war planning.

Word that the veteran diplomat, recently a Truman ambassador in the negotiation of the Japanese Peace Treaty, would get the number one cabinet post next Jan. 20 was generally well received by State Department officials here despite some bitterness toward him resulting from his attacks on Truman foreign policies during the presidential campaign.

Unless he goes to Korea with Eisenhower soon (which Dulles has indicated he will not do) these officials expect he will shortly open an office near that of Secretary of State Acheson.

They believe Dulles will readily accommodate himself to the work of the department and that because of his experience in the field the transfer of control will be smoother than it would have been with almost any other successor.

There is hope here that Dulles will be able to advise informally on and observe decisions which must be made by the present administration in the next two months. Such aid could assist in keeping decisions in line with the aims of the new administration.

Truman administration officials have urged closest possible liaison between incoming and outgoing officials, for this and other reasons.

Dulles is unlike any other man Eisenhower might have named. Not only a veteran of 45 years of work in the foreign field (he was secretary of state in 1907) he has also played an important part in the development of national policies during recent years.

Once a U. S. senator and a close associate of the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg and of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Dulles had a hand in the formation of the United Nations, and in obtaining bi-partisan backing for it.

He has served on many missions abroad, apart from the UN. He was one of those who helped to put across the Marshall Plan and to shape the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In April, 1950, Dulles became a full-time consultant to Acheson. Last March Dulles resigned his consultant position to be free to criticize the administration and to campaign actively for a Republican victory in November.

In the course of this campaign he broadly supported all efforts to unify and strengthen the Allies, but sharply criticized what he considered to be the administration's failure to develop a truly offensive global strategy in the cold war.

To accomplish such an objective and put Russia on the defensive Dulles advocated not only the creation of a super cabinet council, perhaps through revision of the present National Security Council, but also:

1. A psychological campaign by "peaceful means" to make Russia uncertain of its hold over its satellite nations in Eastern Europe and over China. A Kremlin worried by the desire for liberty in those lands, he contended, would have less time to devote to making trouble this side of the Iron Curtain.

2. Development of means to defend weak nations on a global basis, by threatening Russia with direct retaliation if Communist forces tried to open up any more Koreans.

3. Action to streamline relations between the departments of the government dealing with foreign affairs, such as State, Defense and the Mutual Security Agency, so that decisions on legislative action could be more efficiently worked out and the time of cabinet members spared for policy making.

Wilson To Give Job Whirl; History Shows Reverse True

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — Charles Erwin Wilson's comment about giving the defense secretary job the "darndest whirl it ever had" can work both ways.

The job has given four men a whirl in the last four years.

Wilson was named Thursday as President-elect Eisenhower's selection as the next secretary of defense. That the president of General Motors faces a tough assignment is shown by the fact that:

The first secretary, James Forrestal, resigned and, broken by the immense burden of his job, committed suicide.

The second one, Louis Johnson, was fired.

The third one, Gen. George Marshall, served out his assignment for a year, then resigned.

The present one, Robert Lovett, let it be known some months ago, before he knew the election would bring a change in administration, that he intended to leave government. He now says he is more anxious than ever.

EVEN THE gigantic General Motors Corp. which Wilson heads and which, at Eisenhower's request he is leaving to come to Washington, is dwarfed by the proportions of the business he will manage as defense chief.

There is a noteworthy aspect to Wilson's job change: A much bigger job produces a much smaller pay check. The general impression is that his 1951 salary and bonuses totaled about $626,300. He'll get $22,500 from the federal government, and no bonus.

Of all the executive agencies of government, the Defense Department is the largest, the costliest, the most complex, the most technical.

Its responsibilities can be grave. Decisions made by a defense secretary can be important in how a battle is fought and how men die.

The number of persons who work under the Defense Department and its armed forces approaches the five-million mark — 3,600,000 of whom are in the armed forces, the other civilian employees in the far-flung enterprises of the military establishment. General Motors has a big work force, but nowhere near that large.

GENERAL MOTORS is really big business. In defense contracts alone, not counting the income from commercial sales, it has been doing business in the multi-millions since the start of the Korean War. But the Defense Department spending budget runs about $60 billion a year.

The 64-year-old Wilson has headed the vast automobile manufacturing concern since 1941.

A native of Minerva, O., Wilson was educated at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Brownell Is Attorney General; Stassen To Head Aid Agency

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 — (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower Friday afternoon designated George M. Humphrey, of Cleveland, secretary of the treasury. He named Herbert Brownell Jr., of New York, attorney general, and Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, director of the Mutual Security Agency.

Brownell, New York lawyer, was a leader of Eisenhower's campaign for the GOP nomination, and he directed strategy in the election campaign.

Stassen is now president of the University of Pennsylvania. He also was a key figure in Eisenhower's nomination.

Humphrey, 62, is president of the M. A. Hanna Co. of Cleveland. He is a director of numerous large corporations.

It was the second day in a row Eisenhower had handed out a list of appointees who will take over key posts in his administration.

James Hagerty, the general's press secretary, announced the new designations.

The following are some of the positions held by Humphrey in industry:

President of the M. A. Hanna Co., coal and iron ore shippers; chairman of the executive committee, National Steel Corp.; chairman of the board of the Sussman Anthracite Co., of Cleveland; member of the executive committee of the National City Bank, Cleveland; director of the Phelps Dodge Corp.; chairman of the executive committee and director of Industrial Rayon Corp.

Humphrey has some background in government work, having been former chairman of the Industrial Advisory Committee of the Economic Cooperation Administration.

THIS COMMITTEE dealt with reparations and the dismantling of German plants after World War II. He was chairman of the Business Advisory Council of the Commerce Department in 1948.

Stassen has long been active in Republican politics. At the GOP convention, he was an aspirant for the nomination, but switched his votes to Eisenhower to give the general victory on the first ballot over Ohio's Sen. Robert Taft.

Cops Hold Leonard The Lip In Gangland Execution Probe

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 21 — (AP) — With deadpan mobster Leonard C. Mocerri accidentally in custody, police are seeking answers to unsolved gangland executions dating from liquor bootlegging days to the modern Mafia.

"The nation's most wanted triggerman" was the tab given 45-year-old Leonard the Lip by Capt. J. E. Hamilton of the Los Angeles police intelligence unit.

He'd given officers the slip 20 years since indictment on four mob killings in Toledo, O., dating from 1931 to 1933. Officers think there might be some recent chapters such as the Bugsy Siegel murder, the killing of Mickey Cohen's attorney Sammy Rummel and the double slaying of Tony Brancato and Tony Trombino in Hollywood a couple years back.

Detroit police also want to ask some questions concerning the demise of hoodlum Jack George whose body was found stuffed in an automobile trunk.

Backtracking to the Mocerri apartment in Hollywood, where he has been paid since May under one of many aliases, detectives found coffee boiling, ice cream melting, but no Margaret.

It's highly unlikely they'll find her dropping slugs into a telephone. That's how Mocerri gave himself away. He had $1,800 in his wallet and a Cadillac at the curb Tuesday when arrested by telephone company officers.

Later through fingerprints police discovered just who they had in custody, and also found some papers with names, addresses and telephone numbers.

From there the list of those brought in for questioning reads like an underworld who's who. Among them were Tom Dragna, James (The Weasel) Fratianno, Mike Rizzo and Salvatore Pinnelli. Officers said all were local "associates" of Mafia, the notorious crime society. They were released after the question session.

In Las Vegas, Nev., officers arrested John Battaglia, brother of Charlie (The Bat) Battaglia, another mobster wanted for questioning in the Hollywood shootings of Brancato and Trombino. John was on the other end of Mocerri's ill-fated slug phone call.

HAMILTON said police want to ask Johnny just why Mocerri had a bank deposit slip for $10,000 made out to the John Battaglia account. He quoted Mocerri as saying only, "I left Johnny yesterday in Las Vegas. Fact is, I chum around with him."

In Toledo, Prosecutor Joel S. Rhinefort said he will take steps to return Mocerri there for trial. He said the mobster was a member of the Yonnie Licavoli gang which shot to death two bootleggers, Abe Lubitsky and Norman Blatt in 1931; Louise Bell, on Nov. 30, 1932, and her sweetheart, Jack Kennedy, earlier that year.

Western Allies Near Accord On Peace Plan

India's Compromise Gets Airing To Crack Korea POW Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 21 — The Western Allies moved closer to agreement Friday on changes they hoped would bring full support, including that of the U. S., behind India's compromise plan for ending the Korean war prisoner deadlock.

An eighteen-nation group headed by the U. S., Britain and France met behind closed doors to work over amendments to a plan submitted Wednesday by India's V. K. Krishna Menon. Other nations in the group are Canada, Australia, Turkey, Denmark and Colombia.

They have as a working basis changes suggested Thursday by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who said the Indian plan brings the UN nearer to agreement on the one outstanding issue holding up an armistice in Korea, the prisoner of war problem.

Strong American objections to the original Indian resolution (that it was ambiguous and would not work) had threatened a serious split among the 21 allies backing a U. S.-drafted Korean resolution which the Soviet bloc in the UN already has rejected.

THE AMERICANS reportedly insist that Menon's resolution be clarified before they can accept it. The resolution calls for a four-nation commission, with an umpire to settle deadlocks, to handle the repatriation of all war prisoners and take care of those who don't want to return to Red-ruled homes until a political conference decides their fate.

The U. S. reservations apparently have been ironed out to some degree in private talks. Eden's endorsement in the General Assembly's Political Committee Thursday of the plan's general outline, and his suggestions for alterations to clarify its main points, brought the American comment that "we are moving closer and closer to a settlement."

Although the Indians have said they would not have introduced their resolution without reasonable assurance that both Communist and Western nations would accept it, there still was no reaction from the Russians. But the incoming American leaders of foreign policy, President-elect Eisenhower and his choice for secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, were reported by the New York Times as being very skeptical that any of the proposals now before the UN assembly could produce a Korean armistice.

The Times said Dulles' skepticism was based on the "unending difficulties" the U. S., Britain and France had encountered in trying to negotiate an independence treaty for Austria with the Soviet Union.

"After the Western powers gave way on the points previously in disagreement, the Soviet brought up the issue of Trieste, and it is understood that Mr. Dulles feels that the Communists would find something else if the Korea prisoner issue were settled," the Times reported.

Massachusetts, his liaison man in Washington with the fading Democratic administration, who said "there is still a lot to do" in the Republican examination of various executive branches of the federal government.

2. George Meany, secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, who said he had a "nice pleasant talk" with the supported Eisenhower's Democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson. Reporters surmised Meany came bearing peace.

3. Claude Vardaman, chairman of the Alabama State Central Republican Committee, who said they discussed the importance of building up the party in Dixie.

4. Sen. William Knowland of California who said he had "no comment whatever" when he was asked if he is going to be next leader of the Senate.

Meanwhile Eisenhower appeared to be hastening his plans to leave for Korea.

He announced three cabinet appointments Thursday, two of them for offices that deal directly with the Korean problem.

THEY WERE John Foster Dulles, veteran foreign policy adviser, for secretary of state, and Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, for secretary of defense.

Oregon's Gov. Douglas McKay was named for secretary of the interior.

At the same time, Eisenhower's office and the Department of Defense announced there will be no news reports about his Korean trip while he is outside the United States. Only one news writer, a "still" photographer and a news reel cameraman will go with him.

Secretary of Defense Robert Lovett announced earlier that "no news reports of the President-designate's activities will be cleared through the Korean theater of operations until after the President-designate leaves Korea."

Eisenhower was to hold conferences Friday also with Senators H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey and James Duff of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, editor and co-publisher of the Houston (Tex) Post, was on his calling list. She has been mentioned frequently as a possibility for a cabinet position or some other high office in government.

Lodge led the fight for Eisenhower's nomination as the Republican candidate, both before and during the GOP convention.

HE LOST his Senate seat in the Nov. 4 election and is considered almost certain to be brought into Eisenhower's inner circle when the new government takes over.

There has been speculation he may play the role of special assistant to the new President, becoming Eisenhower's "Harry Hopkins."

Eisenhower had a long talk late Thursday with Sinclair Weeks, chairman of the Republican Party Finance Committee. Weeks said there was no discussion of any cabinet posts.

Former Minnesota Gov. Harold E. Stassen came out of Eisenhower's office smiling but evasive about the subject of his conference with the general.

Names heard most often in speculation about the new secretary of the treasury include Weeks, Boston banker Robert Cutler and Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Virginia Democrat who didn't support his party's presidential nominee.

Paul Hoffman, former Marshall Plan administrator and early Eisenhower enthusiast, and Walter Williams of Seattle, head of the Volunteers for Eisenhower, have been talked about for the commerce post.

Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire, Eisenhower's chief of staff during the campaign, probably can have a top spot if he wants one.

Respect, Caution Urged For Coming Thanksgiving Day

Understanding of each other's rights plus extra caution while driving or walking was recommended by police chief W. F. McCrady so motorists and pedestrians alike may full enjoy the Thanksgiving holiday.

When someone dear to you is injured or killed in a traffic accident only sorrow, heartache and, in too many instances, haunting regret follow. At such a time, there certainly is no occasion for thanksgiving.

Holiday traffic will take a heavy toll if pedestrians and motorists fail to observe safe walking and driving practices while enroute to and from Thanksgiving Day gatherings. So that everyone may have a joyful Thanksgiving, McCrady offered the following safety tips:

1. Adjust your speed to road conditions.
2. If you travel after dark, be more careful and watchful than ever.
3. Be alert, careful and courteous, with an understanding of each other's rights.
4. Everyone, pedestrian and motorist alike, must obey all traffic laws, signs and signals.

"Make certain you stay alive," he added, "so as to give thanks on Thanksgiving Day."

REJUVENATION OF MR. TURK U. S.'s No. 1 Fowl Has Come Long Way Since First Pilgrim Nibbled Drumstick

The drumsticks American boys will eat so heartily this Thanksgiving are far different from those enjoyed by the Pilgrims. Far better, too—being meatier, more tender and a lot better flavored.

By GROVER BRINKMAN
Central Press Correspondent
PLYMOUTH, Mass.—This is the season of the All-American. While thousands of people roar their approval from the grandstands, he roars down the football field to fame and glory. Next year he is forgotten—and another takes his place.

This, too, is the season for another "All-American" who is not forgotten in a year, but has been around since the days of the Pilgrims. This "All-American" has a lot of meat on his bones, is a fast runner and even somewhat of a flyer. He's the American turkey.

Well does he deserve his title, too. For of all our domesticated fowl and animals, he is the only one truly native, truly American. Chickens, geese, ducks, cows, sheep and hogs all were imported from the "old country" by our forefathers. But the turkey was here to meet them when they arrived!

He was a much different bird in those days. The turkey that Miles Standish brought back from the Massachusetts woods to the hungry settlers of Plymouth was big—liable to be tough—and had a strong "gamey" flavor.

However, he was mighty good to eat and filled a big place on the table of the Pilgrim, the Virginia tobacco planter, and the Carolina indigo farmer. In fact, turkey rapidly became so popular in the American colonies that Benjamin Franklin suggested it should be the national bird on the emblem of the United States in place of the bald eagle.

DOMESTICATING of turkeys was not begun for years, due to the plentiful wild supply. It was not until they had been exported to Europe, their breed changed somewhat, and imported back into the United States that American farmers began to add them to their barnyard chicken flocks.

By that time they had already acquired the reputation as a prime holiday dish, and had lost out to the smaller and more tender chicken as an everyday food.

As civilization and the hunter's gun cut them down, the huge flocks of wild turkeys became harder and harder to find. Disease, small number raised and other factors kept the turkey an expensive bird—definitely "holiday." Even as late as 1920, Mr. Turk still was classed as a luxury bird.

However, it is instinctive in Americans to resent anything that is a luxury—something only a few can have—and to strive to bring that luxury within the reach of everyone. So it is not surprising that in the past 25 years the turkey has been taken out of the luxury class.

New medicines have reduced his ailments; hatching, breeding, new feeds have improved the bird's meat; quick freezing and American know-how have reduced its cost until today turkey is an every-day bird.

THE TURKEY grower today is a specialist. He concentrates on turkeys and raises them by the thousands. Perhaps he specializes in the new Beltsville white variety, a small, meaty bird weighing perhaps as little as four pounds. Or one of the several other small-type varieties weighing up to 10 pounds. Or they may be big "broadbreasted bronze" Toms weighing up to 28 pounds, fine for hotels or large families. Turkeys have been known to weigh up to 40 pounds.

Anyway, when Mrs. America goes shopping today for turkey, she has a wide variety to choose from. She can buy the bird "ready to cook" or "New York dressed." The latter means it has its head and feet on, but has been picked.

The best thing about turkey today is that it's a real budget saver. The United States Bureau of Home Economics says that yield in finished meat runs from 51 to 58 per cent in turkeys compared with 45 per cent in roaster chickens; 55 per cent on beef round roast, 37 per cent on beef chuck roast and 39 per cent on pork loin chops.

That means a dinner portion of roast turkey today costs between 6 and 16 cents less per portion than any of the five other most commonly served meats.

A member of the pheasant family, today the United States raises about 45 million turkeys, with California, Texas and Minnesota leading in state production.

On the dining table, turkey has been long associated with cranberry sauce and rich dressing. He's an All-American bird, easy to buy, easy to cook, easy on the pocket-book, and mighty easy to eat.

Gordon Urges County Support For New Civil Defense Efforts

Efforts by officials from more than 40 target area cities to pump new life into the nation's civil defense program were praised Friday by the outgoing head of Pickaway County's setup.

Ben Gordon, who has given notice he will not be able to continue in that office, lauded the purpose behind a meeting held this week in Columbus.

The conference was sponsored by Columbus Civil Defense Administrator George Arnold and Mayor James Rhodes.

The meeting was designed to form a national civil defense organization to work in cooperation with steps already in effect. Arnold stressed the new organization will not usurp powers already designated in the nation's civil defense structure.

REPRESENTATIVES from the more than 40 cities in vital target areas came from all over the country to help form the group.

"Obviously something is needed to put new life into the nation's civil defense system," Gordon said. "We certainly need improvements, if we're to have a setup that can be of any use in a real emergency."

"From what I hear of the new idea—coordinating the views and efforts of officials of the key cities—I feel Pickaway County, in its own interests, should be anxious to give any support possible."

Although not formally stated, there were signs the Columbus conference resulted from dissatisfaction held in many communities toward national control of civil defense planning.

Individual communities in many cases over the past year have been critical of civil defense policies reflected in Washington.

Man With Mustache Has Same Feeling As A Boy With Stilts

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK—(AP)—Many women have married a man because of his bankroll. But did any woman ever marry a fellow solely because of his mustache?

Did she ever, crumpling shyly against his manly bosom murmur: "You yourself have an utterly resistible personality, my dear. But your mustache! Ah, I can fight against it no longer. It has swept me quite off my feet."

A boy, rubbing castor oil on his upper lip to stir the slow growth of the reluctant fuzz thereon, may daydream of such situations. But I have never heard in real life of a mustache with much romantic influence.

What is the actual social impact of the mustache?

This question arises because it appears that this form of male facial landscaping is getting more popular. It seems to me I see more and more mustaches around. I would like to believe this is only because there are more people in the world, as I like to look at the bright side of things.

I would hate to see mustaches become a badge of valor or a measure of achievement, as in a society in which that were true I would have to become a hermit.

Men grow mustaches for only three general reasons:

1. They have an inferiority complex.
2. To pay an election bet.
3. Curiosity.

The first of these reasons is the most widespread. And the average mustache carrier will admit it, if pressed.

"I grew mine to prove to myself that I could do something the other guys in my crowd hadn't done," one said. "It helped me overcome a lifelong feeling of inferiority, and gave me an immediate sense of security and personal victory."

The boy or man who rears a mustache out of curiosity or to pay an election bet he has lost soon finds the novelty wears thin, and off comes the mustache. The time and trouble it takes are no longer worth the effort.

But one who grows a mustache to cure himself of inferiority will never yield it until death. In case of fire he places its safety before that of women and children.

It is his hairy banner of success in the battle every man fights within himself, his flag against the world. Behind every mustache lurks a mouse that has been turned by this symbol into a lion.

Ever watch a man with a mustache? Notice how he toys with it, reaching up now and then to be comforted by the fact it is still there? He never is safe from the fear someone will take it away from him, or shave it off while he is asleep.

A mustache automatically turns a man with an inferiority complex into a man with a superiority complex. Secretly or openly, he becomes a snob about it. Often he will take more trouble to discipline it properly than the ordinary parent does to curb a wayward son. He couldn't sell it for a cup of coffee, but to him it is a patch of real estate more valuable than all the forests of Canada.

In his case clothes don't make the man, but his mustache does. That is why wives put up with husbands' mustaches. Being kissed by them must be vaguely like being hit in the mouth with a toothbrush. But a woman tells herself, "well, if it makes my little man feel taller, I'll go along."

And that's what the mustache does do. It gives the fellow the same feeling he had when he wore stilts as a boy.

How do you cure an inferiority complex arising from the discovery you can tear a telephone book in half, but can't grow a measly, piddling, worthless, unsightly, out-of-date, impractical thing like a mustache that nobody really wants anyway?

SEE HUGE 'INTERNATIONAL VOLUNTEER' FORCE INVADING KOREA IF CHI-REDS FORCED BACK

By F. K. WU
Central Press Correspondent
HONG KONG—Some 100,000 "international volunteers" drawn from Soviet Russia and the satellite countries and lurking in Manchuria will go into action in Korea if and when the "Chinese People Volunteers" are driven northward by United Nations troops. This arrangement was agreed upon in Moscow between Premier Josef Stalin and Foreign Minister Chou En-lai of the Peiping regime and ranking members of the Kremlin in early September.

This agreement was reached, according to a Peiping report, after Chou En-lai had complained about the heavy Chinese losses in men and equipment while fighting the American and other UN forces in Korea for 23 months. Premier Josef Stalin then promised to move in his "international brigades" which have been deployed in Siberia and Manchuria since the summer this year.

At the same time the "Chinese People Volunteers" have been well trained and equipped during the prolonged armistice negotiations dragging through 16 months, but to assure victory Moscow called Peiping by undertaking to move up the European puppet units as reinforcements in the event of a UN offensive. The "international volunteers" are reported to be seasoned units equipped with the latest weapons, although their morale is not high.

Chou En-lai signs September pact in Moscow with Russian and Chinese Red bigwigs looking on. Stalin (light coat) is seen behind Chou. Other Russ notables in picture include A. S. Panyushkin, A. Y. Vishinsky, V. M. Molotov, G. M. Malenkov and L. P. Beria.

IN ANY event, the Peiping report added that Soviet Russia will back up Communist China in the present war in Korea in order to achieve Moscow-Peiping objectives against the western democracies in general and the United States in particular. At the same time, the Peiping regime is ordered to gear up its war efforts "in preparation for further liberation of countries in Southeast Asia."

One of these objectives is the Chinese military aid to the Communist-led Vietnamese insurgents in French Indo-China as ordered by Moscow. The amount of military supplies has stepped up to about 1,500 tons to 2,000 tons a month, thereby enabling the Vietnamese troops to start an offensive since mid-October. About 50,000 to 80,000 Chinese Communist troops are scattered in northern Indo-China but will not go into action until the autumn offensive has gained sufficient ground or when the French Union troops and their Vietnamese allies launch a counter-offensive.

The war in Korea and the steady stream of supplies to the Vietnamese forces are being borne out by the vast sums extorted from the Chinese people during the first seven months of the year in the name of anti-corruption drive which yielded an equivalent of about US$2 billion. A local banking source estimated that an equivalent of about US$90 million have been remitted to Hong Kong for the purchase of various goods and other disbursements.

To foot at least a part of the bill for the world liberation movement as announced recently in Moscow by Stalin, Peiping is mapping out fresh taxation schemes. Students of Chinese public finance here said that the Chinese sponge is not squeezed quite dry by the anti-corruption extortion racket from January to July this year and that it is possible to force out a few more drops from the unwilling and greatly impoverished people.

CONTINUOUS exploitation of the people in the name of defending the country against the "American aggressors" at China's gateway, Korea, has resulted in waves of resentment against the Peiping regime, which is, however, determined to ride roughshod in the merry game of get-rich-quick. It is felt here that continuous drawing of wealth from the people without giving them a chance to recover has alienated their loyalty and support.

Also large sums of money are required for the development of the vast and semi-barren northwest as the base of a third world war. Lanchow in Kansu province is to be the industrial and communication center and possibly the wartime capital. The Lunghai railway from Haichow on the coast in North Kiangsu is to be extended from Paochi in Kansu right up to the provincial capital of Lanchow. From Lanchow the railroad will be built westward to Tihua, provincial capital of Shikiang, covering a distance of some 700 miles over rugged and mountainous tracks.

Other proposed railroads will be built from Lanchow to Paotou in Suiyuan province in the north sea Ninghsia province. Paotou has been the terminus of the Peiping-Suiyuan railway which is linked with the Siberian railway. In brief, the northwest will be connected by railway with the U.S.S.R. via Sinkiang and Manchuria. Lanchow is also to be connected in a southern direction with Chengtu, important provincial capital of Szechuan, and eventually with Kwangsi province and the borders of Indo-China.

Chinese press reports quoted Radio Moscow as announcing a five-year industrial plan for China, although no details were given. It is expected by observers here that iron and steel works, machine shops, arsenals, cotton mills will be set up in the northwestern provinces to turn out strategic goods in support of Soviet policy vis-a-vis the western democracies. However, it does not necessarily mean that there will be no general war until after the next four or five years in the opinion of the observers, as all depends on how well Soviet-Chinese intrigue and plans are met by the democratic camp.

U.S. Health 'Excellent' During 1952

America's health was excellent during the first nine months of 1952.

Death rate during the nine-month period was only 6.6 per 1,000, which is the same as in the prime health year of 1951.

Only once before, in 1950, was a lower rate—6.4 per 1,000—recorded for the period.

This year's record was achieved despite Korean war losses and an unusually high toll of life due to the protracted heat spell last Summer. There were almost 10 times as many deaths attributed to excessive heat last July and August as in the entire year of 1951.

One outstandingly favorable aspect of 1952 health has been the decline in tuberculosis mortality. For the nine-month period the death rate from tuberculosis was 14.6 per 100,000, which is a drop of one-fifth since last year and of nearly a third in the last two years.

Diseases of the heart and circulatory system and cancer, which together account for 70 percent of all deaths, registered approximately the same death rate as in 1951. Diabetes shows a small decrease in mortality.

Death rate from accidents is "moderately" higher this year than last, according to statisticians, with the increase reflecting a rise in motor vehicle mishaps and in the residual group of "other accidents" to which the majority of accidental deaths of men in military service are assigned.

Death rate from enemy action in Korea was 2.6 per 100,000 holding insurance policies, substantially lower than the 5.8 per 100,000 rate for the same nine-month period of 1951.

Giotto First Comic Artist?

ROME—Was the 13th century painter Giotto the first comic-strip creator?

Piero Bargellini, Italy's leading art critic, said in a magazine article that the series of mural paintings made by Giotto, Andrea del Orcagna, Agnolo Gaddi, Domenico del Ghirlandaio and other leading Italian artists were "the first comic strips." Giotto's was the first.

He added "then, as of today, there was the need to attract the attention of the common people—the eternal children—who, unable to read, preferred to see, that is to read by images."

The question of education by comic strips, much debated in this country and abroad, found in Bargellini a defender who said "comic strips have an immediate grip on the fantasy of the simple ones and of children."

SEE HUGE 'INTERNATIONAL VOLUNTEER' FORCE INVADING KOREA IF CHI-REDS FORCED BACK

By F. K. WU
Central Press Correspondent

HONG KONG — Some 100,000 "international volunteers" drawn from Soviet Russia and the satellite countries and lurking in Manchuria will go into action in Korea if and when the "Chinese People Volunteers" are driven northward by United Nations troops. This arrangement was agreed upon in Moscow between Premier Josef Stalin and Foreign Minister Chou En-lai of the Peiping regime and ranking members of the Kremlin in early September.

This agreement was reached, according to a Peiping report, after Chou En-lai had complained about the heavy Chinese losses in men and equipment while fighting the American and other UN forces in Korea for 23 months. Premier Josef Stalin then promised to move in his "international brigades" which have been deployed in Siberia and Manchuria since the summer this year.

At the same time the "Chinese People Volunteers" have been well trained and equipped during the prolonged armistice negotiations dragging through 16 months, but to assure victory Moscow calmed Peiping by undertaking to move up the European puppet units as reinforcements in the event of a UN offensive. The "international volunteers" are reported to be seasoned units equipped with the latest weapons, although their morale is not high.

IN ANY event, the Peiping report added that Soviet Russia will back up Communist China in the present war in Korea in order to achieve Moscow-Peiping objectives against the western democracies in general and the United States in particular. At the same time, the Peiping regime is ordered to gear up its war efforts "in preparation for further liberation of countries in Southeast Asia."

One of these objectives is the Chinese military aid to the Communist-led Vietminh insurgents in

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — Elmer Davis, the radio commentator, wrote the New York Times the other day to say that it had erred when it put this headline on an editorial:

"We have a president-elect."

"We have nothing of the sort," Davis said. He's right, of course. Dwight D. Eisenhower hasn't received a single vote for the presidency, even though he is so near the White House he has named some cabinet officers.

The electors, picked in the voting on Nov. 4, meet in their state capitals on Dec. 15 and vote for a president. Their decision becomes official when their votes are counted by Congress on Jan. 6. Not until then is Eisenhower legally the president-elect.

Probably no other part of our federal government has come in for more criticism than the electoral college.

Supreme Court Justice Jackson, with Justice Douglas agreeing, has said it is "mystifying and distorting." Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts has called it a "relic of the past."

THE WORDS "antiquated" and "useless" have been hurled at it again and again. Yet for 150 years it has successfully withstood all assaults.

Two years ago it looked as if it might topple. Lodge, a Republican, and Rep. Ed Gossett, a Texas Democrat, introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to change the system.

Under the proposed amendment, the use of electors would be done away with. And, instead of all the state's electoral votes going to the candidate who carries the state, the electoral vote would be split in the same proportion as the popular vote.

The amendment passed the Senate, 64 to 23 (it needed a two-thirds majority). But opposition developed in both parties and it came a cropper in the House, with 134 votes for and 210 against. Even had the House supported it by a two-thirds majority, the proposal still would have had to be accepted by three-fourths of the states before it became a part of our Constitution.

The electoral college is a reminder that the founding fathers set up a representative form of government. We make our laws through our representatives and senators. And, originally, the voters picked the men who were to pick our presidents.

As the political parties grew, the electors became little more than rubber stamps.

Why hasn't the electoral college been abandoned in favor of a direct vote for the president? The most obvious answer is that it requires a change in the Constitution, and this nation always has been slow to make changes there.

Farm Groups Seek New Trade Policy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — Two major farm organizations will try to sell the incoming Republican administration on the idea of revising government foreign trade policies to promote greater sale of American farm products abroad.

They are the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange, which contend that present policies tend to force Europe to trade with Russia. Both organizations will carry to Republican leaders in Congress and the State and Agriculture Departments the argument that present policies would soon restrict farm markets and bring on rigid production controls.

Robert N. Harms

AMERICAN businessman Robert N. Harms (above), of Winter Park, Fla., is being held in a French Zone jail in Germany on charges of alleged currency and customs violations. His attorney, Earl Carroll, insists Harms is being used as a "cover-up" for a huge defense construction scandal. Arrest of two Americans and 34 German contractors has started a probe of reported bribery and corruption.

Ohioans Pay $250,000 Too Much In Tax

State Treasurer Says He Would Return It, But Law Prevents

COLUMBUS, Nov. 21 — There's a quarter of a million dollars kicking around State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy's office that he wants to return to taxpayers, but the law prevents him.

The money came from overpayments on intangibles taxes. Tracy would like to return the cash and plans to ask the new Ohio Legislature for permission. Until he receives it, Tracy can only issue certificates of abatement for the overpayments. The certificates can be used only to pay future taxes of a similar nature.

The treasurer started issuing them in 1939. The first one for $4 still is unused. Another for $4,000 went to a firm that no longer is in business. One Dayton firm has credit for overpayments exceeding $100,000.

Tracy, as the state's chief tax collector, handles about $1 billion annually from various sources.

THE TAXES he collects go either into the general revenue fund to run the state or they are returned to local governments.

The last legislature broadened the law covering certificates of abatement to permit their use for any tax going into the general fund if the taxes originally paid went there.

But for taxes returned to local governments, the certificates can be used only for like taxes in the future.

Tracy's office said it would help if the certificates could be used to pay any kind of future taxes collected by the state.

But the treasurer prefers to return the cash and expressed the hope that the lawmakers will grant that authority and eliminate some bookkeeping.

ELYRIA, Nov. 21 — Nobody gets arrested in them, but Lorain County Sheriff Carl Finegan says his fake radar speed traps work fine.

"Lots of motorists know we use dummy sets," the sheriff explained. "But we've got a real set, too, and they never can tell which is which."

Eagle Is Killed On Kelley's Island

SANDUSKY, Nov. 21 — A 14-pound American bald eagle, shot on the opening day of hunting season at nearby Kelley's Island, is in a freezer here while a federal game protector investigates its death.

Hunters found the big smoky brown plumed bird Monday in a field on the island. It measured three feet in height and had a wingspread of seven feet. Island residents fear the shooting might frighten away the island's last two eagles. The pair has nested for years on the north shore and the eagle killed Monday appeared to be one of their offspring.

Most Powerful Engine Unveiled

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 — A new 2,400-horsepower locomotive has been announced by Fairbanks, Morse & Co. officials who described it as the world's most powerful single-engine diesel locomotive. V. H. ## Appreciation Much Needed, Rotary Told

"If there is anything we need in this busy world it's gratitude and appreciation," said the Rev. Clarence Swearingen Thursday in his address at Circleville Rotary Club in Elk's home.

During the Thanksgiving program, the Rev. Mr. Swearingen said we need to be thankful for many things that we see each day.

He said the holiday is strictly American, and a very religious one, because the emotion of gratitude is the finest and highest emotion of religion.

He continued that the original thought behind the first Thanksgiving was not thanks for worldly things, such as food, but thanks for the reward of their toil and for the justice and kindness of the universe.

THE REV. Mr. Swearingen said as long as man is man, with a sense of morals and a conscience, he will be grateful for the things that come to him in life. Our present heritage has been brought to us through centuries of toil, and we should be grateful for it and never do anything to lose it.

He said true gratitude is not going to forget its obligations, and gratitude is like the divinity of man—there is goodness in everyone of them if you can find it—so there is always something to be grateful for.

The Rev. Mr. Swearingen ended by saying: "One of the greatest things we could all do is to express our appreciation to those around us for what they've done for us. The universe responds to effort. Let us prove gratitude is the finest thought of religion."

President Mac Noggle announced that Robert Brehmer, Robert Brehmer Jr., Vaden Couch and Sterley Cronan will be on the December serving committee. Next regular meeting of the group will be Dec. 11. Mike Brown was the Junior Rotarian present.

Carl Leist announced the Rotary Ann party is being planned for 6:30 p. m. Dec. 5 in First Evangelical United Brethren church service center.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — Riding a boom in consumer goods production, non-farm employment in mid-October stayed at a record 47.7 million, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reports.

This is 800,000 more workers than in October, 1951. Most of the expansion was listed for manufacturing industries, up 440,000 during the past year to 16,400,000.

The previous conviction and sentence was set aside by the Court of Military Appeals. McConnell was ion and was tried by a general accused of going to sleep Nov. 14, court martial in Korea Dec. 10, 1951, at his post on a main line of resistance held by the 7th Division.

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — (AP)—Elmer Davis, the radio commentator, wrote the New York Times the other day to say that it had erred when it put this headline on an editorial:

"We have a president-elect."
"We have nothing of the sort," Davis said. He's right, of course.

Dwight D. Eisenhower hasn't received a single vote for the presidency, even though he is so near the White House he has named some cabinet officers.

The electors, picked in the voting on Nov. 4, meet in their state capitals on Dec. 15 and vote for a president. Their decision becomes official when their votes are counted by Congress on Jan. 6. Not until then is Eisenhower legally the president-elect.

Probably no other part of our federal government has come in for more criticism than the electoral college.

Supreme Court Justice Jackson, with Justice Douglas agreeing, has said it is "mystifying and distorting." Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts has called it a "relic of the past."

THE WORDS "antiquated" and "useless" have been hurled at it again and again. Yet for 150 years it has successfully withstood all assaults.

Two years ago it looked as if it might topple. Lodge, a Republican, and Rep. Ed Gossett, a Texas Democrat, introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to change the system.

Under the proposed amendment, the use of electors would be done away with. And, instead of all the state's electoral votes going to the candidate who carries the state, the electoral vote would be split in the same proportion as the popular vote.

The amendment passed the Senate, 64 to 23 (it needed a two-thirds majority). But opposition developed in both parties and it came a cropper in the House, with 134 votes for and 210 against.

Even had the House supported it by a two-thirds majority, the proposal still would have had to be accepted by three-fourths of the states before it became a part of our Constitution.

The electoral college is a reminder that the founding fathers set up a representative form of government. We make our laws through our representatives and senators. And, originally, the voters picked the men who were to pick our presidents.

As the political parties grew, the electors became little more than rubber stamps.

Why hasn't the electoral college been abandoned in favor of a direct vote for the president? The most obvious answer is that it requires a change in the Constitution, and this nation always has been slow to make changes there.

Farm Groups Seek New Trade Policy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21 — (AP)—Two major farm organizations will try to sell the incoming Republican administration on the idea of revising government foreign trade policies to promote greater sale of American farm products abroad.

They are the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange, which contend that present policies tend to force Europe to trade with Russia. Both organizations will carry to Republican leaders in Congress and the State and Agriculture Departments the argument that present policies would soon restrict farm markets and bring on rigid production controls.

Fake Radar Traps OK, Sheriff Says

ELYRIA, Nov. 21 — (AP)—Nobody gets arrested in them, but Lorain County Sheriff Carl Finegan says his fake radar speed traps work fine.

"Lots of motorists know we use dummy sets," the sheriff explained. "But we've got a real set, too, and they never can tell which is which."

Robert N. Harms

AMERICAN business man Robert N. Harms (above), of Winter Park, Fla., is being held in a French Zone jail in Germany on charges of alleged currency and customs violations. His attorney, Earl Carroll, insists Harms is being used as a "cover-up" for a huge defense construction scandal. Arrest of two Americans and 34 German contractors has started a probe of reported bribery and corruption.

Ohioans Pay $250,000 Too Much In Tax

State Treasurer Says He Would Return It, But Law Prevents

COLUMBUS, Nov. 21 — (AP)—There's a quarter of a million dollars kicking around State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy's office that he wants to return to taxpayers, but the law prevents him.

The money came from overpayments on intangibles taxes. Tracy would like to return the cash and plans to ask the new Ohio Legislature for permission. Until he receives it, Tracy can only issue certificates of abatement for the overpayments. The certificates can be used only to pay future taxes of a similar nature.

The treasurer started issuing them in 1939. The first one for $4 still is unused. Another for $4,000 went to a firm that no longer is in business. One Dayton firm has credit for overpayments exceeding $100,000.

Tracy, as the state's chief tax collector, handles about $1 billion annually from various sources.

THE TAXES he collects go either into the general revenue fund to run the state or they are returned to local governments.

The last legislature broadened the law covering certificates of abatement to permit their use for any tax going into the general fund if the taxes originally paid went there.

But for taxes returned to local governments, the certificates can be used only for like taxes in the future.

Tracy's office said it would help if the certificates could be used to pay any kind of future taxes collected by the state.

But the treasurer prefers to return the cash and expressed the hope that the lawmakers will grant that authority and eliminate some bookkeeping.

Eagle Is Killed On Kelley's Island

SANDUSKY, Nov. 21 — (AP)—A 14-pound American bald eagle, shot on the opening day of hunting season at nearby Kelley's island, is in a freezer here while a federal game protector investigates its death.

Hunters found the big smoky brown plumed bird Monday in a field on the island. It measured three feet in height and had a wingspread of seven feet. Island residents fear the shooting might frighten away the island's last two eagles. The pair has nested for years on the north shore and the eagle killed Monday appeared to be one of their offspring.

Most Powerful Engine Unveiled

NEW YORK, Nov. 21 — (AP)—A new 2,400-horsepower locomotive has been announced by Fairbanks, Morse & Co. officials who described it as the world's most powerful single-engine diesel locomotive.

V. H. Peterson, vice president of railroad sales, said the new "train master" was designed to handle a wide variety of railroad jobs from 80 mile an hour passenger runs to high tonnage freight hauls.

A PLEDGE IS A PLEDGE

THOSE WHO agonize over President-elect Eisenhower's forthcoming trip to Korea in fear he will be killed ignore one simple factor. A first hand inspection of the Korean situation, with the aim of attacking the deplorable impasse from a fresh point of view, was one of the final pledges in the Eisenhower campaign.

No one knows how many votes were influenced by that pledge. To put it now in the limbo of "campaign oratory" is essentially a cynical proposal which would damage the basis of Eisenhower's appeal to the people.

The American people voted for honesty in government. Honesty in government would not be promoted by regarding campaign pledges as meaningless talk. Voters have become weary of hearing candidates talk one way and acting another after they have been elected. If the Eisenhower campaign meant no more than that, his leadership would suffer grievously.

Let the Korean trip proceed. The President-elect has been riding planes for 30 years. Hazards of the trip to Korea are no greater than damage to his prestige that might be involved in cancellation of the projected tour.

What will develop as a result of the trip to Korea can not be predicted. The nation is caught in a Russian trap. To extricate itself with honor will require the best efforts of the new administration.

Americans are getting awfully tired of being merely an immovable object in Korea.

More sealskins are coming in for fur coats. The mink business has quieted down somewhat.

Some politicians want a special session of Congress, others are doubtful whether it would suit their special needs.

Traffic was stopped in Chicago while the life of a bird was saved. Somehow, that doesn't seem like Chicago.

Instead of footprints on the sands of time, some present-day great men are leaving their memoirs, which are more interesting.

One character says Americans have not become really tax conscious. If so, it is not for lack of opportunity.

Turkeys are cheaper, which will enable Americans not only to be thankful but to be thankful with trimmings.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Senator Styles Bridges, addressing himself to the Korean question in the "American Mercury," profoundly remarks:

"In our Republic one man is said to be as good as another. But it doesn't follow that one man is as wise as another; and what is needed now is wisdom."

It is so often said that every man is entitled to his opinion. Yet, what is his opinion worth when neither experience, scholarship nor wisdom supports it? The Korean War, costly in American life, is an example of the danger to a nation of swift action guided not by carefully prepared knowledge and applied wisdom, but by an emotional reflex to an immediate challenge. As long as our Government was directed in its Far Eastern policies by Owen Lattimore, John P. Davies Jr., Philip Jessup and similar persons prejudiced at the time of crisis in favor of Soviet Russia, we had to go wrong.

Senator Bridges wisely raises the question as to the fact of the war. It is a war. It is not a police action. It is an American war, not a United Nations disciplinary effort. He says of it:

"The Third World War is not in the future; we are in it now; we were in it even before the Second World War ended. The Third World War is the oldest of all wars; it's the determination of totalitarian conspiracy to destroy the revolutionary idea of free government and individual importance."

This is a correctly stated position from which there can be no factual retreat. And no one, Republican or Democrat, Truman, Eisenhower or Stevenson, has presented a program for ending this war. Perhaps there can be no end to it in the foreseeable future. Do we have the courage to face that fact? Do we have the fortitude to recognize that historical errors having been made by our politicians at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam, they cannot be corrected by wishful thinking and by Pollyannish platitudes?

How complicated our relations to the enemy are is evidenced by the fact that we have spent 16 months talking about how a truce might be achieved and during that prolonged period no truce has been approached and Americans have continued to be killed.

One of our major difficulties is that for most Americans Asia is a forbidden continent about which they know nothing. Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, Secretaries of State Hull, Byrnes, Stettinius, Marshall and Acheson were ignorant concerning Asia. The only one of these men who had spent any time on that continent was General George Marshall, first with the Fifteenth Infantry in Tientsin and then as Mr. Roosevelt's Ambassador to China. The only experts consulted from 1937 to 1952 were leftists, out of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Older China experts were ignored because their well-prepared experience conflicted with the opinions of those who, without knowledge, reached conclusions which have proved to be wrong. Of this Senator Bridges says:

According to a famous geologist the world will be entirely devoid of water a thousand million years from now. It will be entirely devoid of forests if it doesn't rain soon.

DIET AND HEALTH

Reducing Is Vital To Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MANY people regard reducing as just a beauty problem. Doctors know, however, that the health problems of reducing and overweight are becoming increasingly important.

Why? Because certain diseases today put a penalty on the person who is overweight. Many living today can remember when tuberculosis and pneumonia killed large numbers of people every year, as did the infectious diseases, especially diseases of children. In the over-all picture today, these diseases have become less frequent causes of death.

Diseases of Age

The diseases which cause most deaths today are those of middle and advanced age, including diseases of the heart and blood vessels. About half of all deaths are from these and associated disorders. Among people over 45, they cause an even higher percentage of deaths.

Overweight is one of the most important conditions leading to diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

Men and women are also living longer today, so more people reach the age when they put on extra fatty tissue. This in turn hastens the diseases I have mentioned. When we attack the problem of overweight, we will also cut down the amount of heart and blood vessel disease.

At least fifteen million adults above 35 are overweight, and this is one of the most frequent difficulties found in persons examined by physicians.

The overweight person usually has a greater tendency toward high blood pressure. Almost 60 per cent of people with diabetes were overweight before the onset of this disease. Close to half the people with gallbladder disease are overweight. Kidney diseases are also more frequent in such people.

Statistics show that the fat person takes greater risks in childbearing and surgery. It is also found that extremely fat people have a much higher death rate than those who are moderately fat or normal. The only type of death in which they have a lower rate than those who are normal or underweight is suicide. It seems that plump people are happier.

From this we can see that too much poundage tends to shorten life and leads to disease. It is well to watch weight to keep well.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. S.: I am 67 years of age and have recently lost my sense of taste and smell. What can I do?

Answer: It is not uncommon for people to lose their sense of taste and smell as they become older. In most cases this loss is permanent and it is not possible to correct it.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

EVERYONE was gabbling excitedly about what had happened. That furnished the opportunity Whirter was seeking to slip away. Five minutes later, Whirter let himself in to the 'tween-decks cabin where Jenkyn had been caught.

"I've got to talk fast," Whirter said, lowering his voice and glancing furtively a head. "If Rawls found out about me being here, he'd raise the devil."

"I thought you was in command," Jenkyn retorted dubiously. "I was," Whirter acknowledged. "But he's pulled so many things like that one with the cannon that the crew are ready to follow him, not me. But if he gets control, it'll go hard with both of us. And there's more than one way to skin a cat. If a bunch of us were to hit the gold camps hard and sudden—like we'd planned—ain't there plenty of gold to make it worth while?"

A gleam returned to Jenkyn's eyes. "Gold!" he repeated. "Those camps are lousy with it! But you ain't got a chance of reachin' them. And if you did, it'd take a big crew to get anywhere. Them miners will put up a hell of a fight."

"Let them! We'll have the crew, and a big one. I suppose you and your Indian friends know all about what happened downriver. But however it may sound, the Sioux are making a mistake. I'm their friend."

"Yeah? After what just happened, they'll sure think so!" Whirter checked the hot retort that rose to his lips at the sneer. It told him exactly where Jenkyn stood.

"You know that I didn't have anything to do about that order—though I'm glad the cannon was fired, with you and them set to double-cross us. But there's been mistakes on both sides, and that trouble back in Dakota was another case where Rawls and McQuestion double-crossed them."

"I brought the guns and the whiskey along, all the way from St. Louis, because I wanted the Sioux to have them," Whirter went on impatiently. "Can't you see? I'm an officer of the Confederacy. So we're on the same side, if they'd only believe it. Well, you're one of them. We can work together—if they have any sense."

Jenkyn had envisioned the rope for the part he had played. Any respite was welcome.

"Go ahead," he said hoarsely. "You can count on me!"

"It's a matter of common sense and self-interest for everybody concerned," Whirter explained. "There's a lot of whiskey aboard these boats—enough to cough up the war whoops in every Indian gullet west of the Mississippi! We've also got a lot of guns. It was McQuestion's idea to trade them for furs."

"So far as I'm concerned, I don't want to trade the stuff for furs—just for friendship and good-will. In other words, if I get you loose from here, your job will be to tell the Indians that they can have the guns and whiskey—all of it—for nothing. That ought to prove that I'm on their side."

"How much is there?" Jenkyn asked hoarsely. "About enough to make up the cargo of one boat. I'll have it all transferred to the Astrod, and we'll take it upriver another day's run, then unload it for them. I'll expect them to drink the liquor and to use the guns to the best advantage. And if you have any influence with them, why shouldn't they go along with me to raid those gold camps? They can have everything they find—including scalps—everything except the gold. I want that. But they'll get big value for their share."

Jenkyn drew a deep breath. Whirter was a man with a mind that could not be swayed from an idea, and as usual, he made that seem a plausible notion. For his own part, knowing something of the men at Alder Gulch, at Virginia City and other nearby camps, Jenkyn had no desire to approach any closer to them than he now was, no matter what the inducement. Besides, though that was his secret, he had other fish to fry. There was a lot of difference between theory and practice—particularly when the latter was emphasized by the nose.

Whirter talked, outlining plans in swift detail. Jenkyn nodded agreement.

"I'll smuggle you ashore as soon as it's dark," Whirter added. "You do your part, and everybody will profit in a big way. The fact that I'll risk putting myself in the hands of the Indians, along with delivering the guns and liquor, is

"I'll tend to that," Jenkyn agreed.

Whirter returned to the deck. The excitement had abated, the new topic of conversation was about exhausted, and they again looked to him, expectantly. His face told them nothing.

"We had a close shave this morning," he said. "I see now that it was a mistake to go ashore before the cannon was fired to test them out. But with Mr. Earnshaw obeying orders to the letter, it worked out very well." A glance at Earnshaw showed his face expressionless, and Whirter knew that, put that way, Earnshaw would continue to obey. He was a soldier first, and so were these others.

"War," he went on, "is a game in which only one thing counts—the final battle. It doesn't matter how many skirmishes you lose if you win the final victory. If you can't succeed by a frontal attack, try a rear-guard action. But win. That's what we're going to do."

He looked around, rapped out his orders.

"Mr. Earnshaw, please have the cargoes of both boats partially changed. I want the whiskey and guns, except for enough to arm the men who will remain with the Varina, transferred at once to the Astrod, and the other stuff aboard her shifted to the Varina. As soon as that's done, we're going on, as far upriver as it's possible to take the Astrod. I figure that we can reach Pomp's Pillar. The Varina will remain here with the women and a sufficient crew to protect her, with you in charge. As for the rest of us, when we can go no farther by boat, we'll strike overland, attain our objective, and return."

Cannily he refrained from explaining what he really had in mind, but Rawls had no difficulty in guessing. Taking the whiskey as well as the guns made that clear. If anything, this was a bigger gamble than before, but Whirter was a gambler at heart. And it was those all-or-nothing stakes that occasionally paid off.

The men were dubious, but they set to work under Earnshaw's direction. Whirter had given the impression that he had ordered the Varina to be fired, and that helped restore their confidence. The very daring of the idea, as he outlined it, appealed to them, a challenge to the fighter in every man. Once more they got along.

Dining with Danny and Sylvia Kaye, the discussion veered to the first joke everybody present remembered hearing in elementary school. Danny seemed to recall a teacher telling his class, "The principal wants me to take you all to the zoo tomorrow, but what I say is, if the zoo wants you, let them come and get you." Sylvia brought home a story about a lad who told his druggist, "A kid sister arrived at our house last night. Mom told me to order a package of diapers." The druggist said, "They'll cost you 97 cents, sonny, plus 3 cents for tax." The lad responded, "Never mind the taxes. We plan to use safety pins."

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—Former defense mobilizer Charles E. Wilson's formal proposal that the government reduce the public debt and cut taxes by selling its $7 billion public power system to private interests was rejected by President Truman because the latter feels that the Democratic Party is "committed to government ownership."

Wilson disclosed this radical sidelight on Truman's policies in a letter to the writer, who had asked him to elaborate on his idea for getting the government out of competition with private business and industry in this and other fields. It is probable that the plan will be pressed when the Republicans assume control of Congress in January.

DEBT REDUCTION — In a statement after he resigned his defense job here, the former head of General Electric advocated the eventual sale to private interests or to individuals of all Federal holdings, including tin, rubber, power and atomic plants, bridges, barge lines, etc. He figures that this would reduce the national debt by about $25 billion and raise several billion in new taxes annually.

"The general idea of lightening the government debt through disposition of certain power projects and other properties," wrote Wilson, "is by no means a new one."

"It was early in 1946, when the national debt was mounting dangerously, that I discussed the possibility, even at that time advancing the further idea of having those who were disposed to buy securities in the new companies, for private operation of previously owned government holdings pay for their securities in the new companies by turning in their government bonds."

"I think the idea was first advanced to Messrs. Truman, Vice-President Barkley, Secretary Snyder and Attorney General Clark, and possibly to a few other government officials."

DEMS COMMITTED — "Nothing came of the proposition because the President reminded me that his Party was committed to what he described as public ownership, meaning, of course, outright government ownership."

"I discussed the general proposition with the President a number of times since, but was unable to work up an enthusiasm for it."

Despite Truman's indifference, the Wilson suggestion has taken root to such an extent that reclamation commissioner Michael W. Strauss, although a public power apostle, has recently discussed the possible sale of power projects to the state of California. There have also been proposals that Grand Coulee, Bonneville and TVA be taken over by states operating as regional public power authorities.

"As the government debt mounted," continue Wilson, "and when I became defense mobilizer, faced with some responsibility for debt increases, inflation and higher taxes, I renewed interest in the general program outlined above."

"An added incentive was the realization that the original concept of TVA as a water-power plant had been changed, since they had installed considerable steam power and contemplated vast expansion of additional steam power."

"Frankly, I cannot conceive any good reason why the whole project should not be sold to a private company, and by 'private,' I mean one that would offer the securities to all Americans who desire the opportunity to invest."

BUY WITH BONDS — "In the public power field alone," estimates Wilson, "more than a billion dollars of United States savings bonds could be lopped off the federal debt by the owners using them to purchase the new securities. (If sufficient people wished to invest, the amount would be far larger, of course—Ed. note.)"

"I was not unmindful of the fact that the private operating company would be a big payer of national and state taxes, which is what I happen to think should be. The same thinking applies to many other projects, including the largest of the currently government-owned projects in California and the Northwest."

"I quite frankly admit that, in all consideration of my proposal, one of my principal points of interest was the ownership, by literally millions of people, in such an important field of power generations and distribution."

"We talk so much about adult education in the current economies of our country, but I have had and continue to have a feeling that one of the most potent and practical lessons would be to secure five to ten million shareholders in pioneering in typically American industries."

"It would give them a deeper sense of responsibility in and for our American economic system."

THOSE WHO agonize over President-elect Eisenhower's forthcoming trip to Korea in fear he will be killed ignore one simple factor. A first hand inspection of the Korean situation, with the aim of attacking the deplorable impasse from a fresh point of view, was one of the final pledges in the Eisenhower campaign.

No one knows how many votes were influenced by that pledge. To put it now in the limbo of "campaign oratory" is essentially a cynical proposal which would damage the basis of Eisenhower's appeal to the people.

The American people voted for honesty in government. Honesty in government would not be promoted by regarding campaign pledges as meaningless talk. Voters have become weary of hearing candidates talk one way and acting another after they have been elected. If the Eisenhower campaign meant no more than that, his leadership would suffer grievously.

Let the Korean trip proceed. The President-elect has been riding planes for 30 years. Hazards of the trip to Korea are no greater than damage to his prestige that might be involved in cancellation of the projected tour.

What will develop as a result of the trip to Korea can not be predicted. The nation is caught in a Russian trap. To extricate itself with honor will require the best efforts of the new administration.

These Days

George E. Sokolsky's
Senator Styles Bridges, addressing himself to the Korean question in the "American Mercury," profoundly remarks:

"In our Republic one man is said to be as good as another. But it doesn't follow that one man is as wise as another; and what is needed now is wisdom—"

It is so often said that every man is entitled to his opinion. Yet, what is his opinion worth when neither experience, scholarship nor wisdom supports it? The Korean War, costly in American life, is an example of the danger to a nation of swift action guided not by carefully prepared knowledge and applied wisdom, but by an emotional reflex to an immediate challenge. As long as our Government was directed in its Far Eastern policies by Owen Lattimore, John P. Davies Jr., Philip Jessup and similar persons prejudiced at the time of crisis in favor of Soviet Russia, we had to go wrong.

Senator Bridges wisely raises the question as to the fact of the war. It is a war. It is not a police action. It is an American war, not a United Nations disciplinary effort. He says of it:

"The Third World War is not in the future; we are in it now; we were in it even before the Second World War ended. The Third World War is the oldest of all wars; it's the determination of totalitarian conspiracy to destroy the revolutionary idea of free government and individual importance."

This is a correctly stated position from which there can be no factual retreat. And no one, Republican or Democrat, Truman, Eisenhower or Stevenson, has presented a program for ending this war. Perhaps there can be no end to it in the foreseeable future. Do we have the courage to face that fact? Do we have the fortitude to recognize that historical errors having been made by our politicians at Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam, they cannot be corrected by wishful thinking and by Pollyannish platitudes?

How complicated our relations to the enemy are evidenced by the fact that we have spent 16 months talking about how a truce might be achieved and during that prolonged period no truce has been approached and Americans have continued to be killed.

One of our major difficulties is that for most Americans Asia is a forbidden continent about which they know nothing. Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, Secretaries of State Hull, Byrnes, Stettinius, Marshall and Acheson were ignorant concerning Asia. The only one of these men who had spent any time on that continent was General George Marshall, first with the Fifteenth Infantry in Tientsin and then as Mr. Roosevelt's Ambassador to China. The only experts consulted from 1937 to 1952 were leftists, out of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Older China experts were ignored because their well-prepared experience conflicted with the opinions of those who, without knowledge, reached conclusions which have proved to be wrong. Of this Senator Bridges says:

Reducing Is Vital To Health

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
MANY people regard reducing as just a beauty problem. Doctors know, however, that the health problems of reducing and overweight are becoming increasingly important.

Why? Because certain diseases today put a penalty on the person who is overweight.

Many living today can remember when tuberculosis and pneumonia killed large numbers of people every year, as did the infectious diseases, especially diseases of children. In the over-all picture today, these diseases have become less frequent causes of death.

Diseases of Age
The diseases which cause most deaths today are those of middle and advanced age, including diseases of the heart and blood vessels. About half of all deaths are from these and associated disorders. Among people over 45, they cause an even higher percentage of deaths.

Overweight is one of the most important conditions leading to diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

Men and women are also living longer today, so more people reach the age when they put on extra fatty tissue. This in turn hastens the diseases I have mentioned. When we attack the problem of overweight, we will also cut down the amount of heart and blood vessel disease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
F. S.: I am 67 years of age and have recently lost my sense of taste and smell. What can I do?
Answer: It is not uncommon for people to lose their sense of taste and smell as they become older. In most cases this loss is permanent and it is not possible to correct it.

FORBIDDEN RIVER

by AL CODY

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE
EVERYONE was gabbling excitedly about what had happened. That furnished the opportunity Whirter was seeking to slip away. Five minutes later, Whirter let himself in to the "tween-decks" cabin where Jenkyn had been thrown.

"I've got to talk fast," Whirter said, lowering his voice and glancing furtively a und. "If Rawls found out about me being here, he'd raise the devil."

"I thought you was in command," Jenkyn retorted dubiously.

"I was," Whirter acknowledged. "But he's pulled so many things like that one with the cannon that the crew are ready to follow him, not me. But if he gets control, it'll go hard with both of us. And there's more than one way to skin a cat. If a bunch of us were to hit the gold camps hard and sudden—like we'd planned— isn't there plenty of gold to make it worth while?"

A gleam returned to Jenkyn's eyes. "Gold!" he repeated. "Those camps are lousy with it! But you ain't got a chance of reachin' them. And if you did, it'd take a big crew to get anywhere. Them miners will put up a hell of a fight."

"Let them! We'll have the crew, and a big one. I suppose you and your Indian friends know all about what happened downriver. But however it may sound, the Sioux are making a mistake. I'm their friend."

"Yeah? After what just happened, they'll sure think so!" Whirter checked the hot sneer that rose to his lips at the retort. It told him exactly where Jenkyn stood.

"You know that I didn't have anything to do about that order—though I'm glad the cannon was fired, with you and them set to double-cross us. But there's been mistakes on both sides, and that trouble back in Dakota was another case where Rawls and McQuestion double-crossed them."

"I brought the guns and the whiskey along, all the way from St. Louis, because I wanted the Sioux to have them," Whirter went on impatiently. "Can't you see? I'm an officer of the Confederacy. So we're on the same side. If they'd only believe it. Well, you're one of them. We can work together—if they have any sense."

Jenkyn had envisioned the rope for the part he had played. Any respite was welcome.

"Go ahead," he said hoarsely. "You can count on me!"

"It's a matter of common sense and self-interest for everybody concerned," Whirter explained. "There's a lot of whiskey aboard these boats—enough to cough up the war whoops in every Indian gullet west of the Mississippi! We've also got a lot of guns. It was McQuestion's idea to trade them for furs."

"So far as I'm concerned, I don't want to trade the stuff for furs—just for friendship and good-will. In other words, if I get you loose from here, your job will be to tell the Indians that they can have the guns and whiskey—all of it—for nothing. That ought to prove that I'm on their side."

"How much is there?" Jenkyn asked hoarsely.

"About enough to make up the cargo of one boat. I'll have it all transferred to the Astrod, and we'll take it upriver another day's run, then unload it for them. I'll expect them to drink the liquor and to use the guns to the best advantage. And if you have any influence with them, why shouldn't they go along with me to lead those gold camps? They can have everything they find—including scalps—everything except the gold. I want that. But they'll get big value for their share."

Jenkyn drew a deep breath. Whirter was a man with a mind that could not be swerved from an idea, and as usual, he made that seem a plausible notion. For his own part, knowing something of the men at Alder Gulch, at Virginia City and other near-by camps, Jenkyn had no desire to approach any closer to them than he now was, no matter what the inducement. Besides, though that was his secret, he had other fish to fry. There was a lot of difference between theory and practice—particularly when the latter was emphasized by the noose.

And he knew that the Indians felt pretty much as he did. Red Cloud and his warriors had a long list of grievances against the white man, and with a handful of renegades to egg them on, they were causing considerable of a ruckus. But Red Cloud was a canny warrior. That he'd like to get the guns without dispute, and his men would like the whiskey.

But they wouldn't be interested in an expedition against such long odds as this one represented. It was one thing for Whirter to plan a quick surprise attack and then a swift withdrawal with the loot, an escape out of the country. For him it might work. For them it could only mean a running battle increasing in fury as the miners and other settlers rallied. And in the end it could mean only disaster.

Jenkyn considered this, but he couldn't refrain from voicing it aloud. Whirter aimed to use him for a tool. It might be that the process could be reversed.

Whirter talked, outlining plans in swift detail. Jenkyn nodded agreement.

"I'll smuggle you ashore as soon as it's dark," Whirter added. "You do your part, and everybody will profit in a big way. The fact that I'll risk putting myself in the hands of the Indians, along with delivering the guns and liquor, should prove my good faith. And there's one other thing."

He looked around, rapped out his orders.

"Mr. Earnshaw, please have the cargoes of both boats partially changed. I want the whiskey and guns, except for enough to arm the men who will remain with the Varina, transferred at once to the Astrod, and the other stuff aboard her shifted to the Varina. As soon as that's done, we're going on, as far upriver as it's possible to take the Astrod. I figure that we can reach Pomp's Pillar. The Varina will remain here with the women and a sufficient crew to protect her, with you in charge. As for the rest of us, when we can go no farther by boat, we'll strike overland, attain our objective, and return."

Cannily he refrained from explaining what he really had in mind, but Rawls had no difficulty in guessing. Taking the whiskey as well as the guns made that clear. If anything, this was a bigger gamble than before, but Whirter was a gambler at heart. And it was those all-or-nothing stakes that occasionally paid off.

The men were dubious, but they set to work under Earnshaw's direction. Whirter had given the impression that he had ordered the cannon to be fired, and that helped restore their confidence. The very daring of the idea, as he outlined it, appealed to them, a challenge to the fighter in every man. Once more they'd go along.

In developing this theme various members of the club will review several chapters of the revised, "America's Garden Book" by Louise Bush-Brown and James Bush-Brown. At several meetings during the year a different member of the club will provide a special feature in the form of a table arrangement using one place setting suggestive of that month. Guest speakers have been invited for four meetings, and all other programs to be conducted by members. There will be field trips, nature studies, tours of members' gardens and other tours. A picnic also is planned.

Chico Has A Lot To Say In The Reber Household

Chico Reber is quite a bird. That is not just a slang expression, for he actually is the one-year-old budgerigar, or Australian love bird belonging to Mrs. John Reber and son, Bobby Reber of 351 East Franklin street. These birds are sometimes better known as shell parakeets.

Chico is unusual because in addition to the usual sounds birds make, he also talks. You may be skeptical if you wish, but its true, he really does talk. Mrs. Reber bought Chico as a Christmas present for her son last year, at the tender age of five weeks. In order to teach him his unusual tricks, she works with him every day, repeating over and over for him some phrase. Not being in contact with anything except humans, the bird mimics the sounds Mrs. Reber makes.

"He's not smart enough to know what he is saying; he only imitates," Mrs. Reber said. But when you see him perched on Mrs. Reber's shoulder, head cocked and listening intently to what she says, one wonders.

If she should stop talking, Chico lights on Mrs. Reber's shoulder and reaches over to give her a peck, as if to say, "talk some more."

He has a repertoire of about 30 words. He talks best when placed in front of a mirror or something in which he can see his reflection. He also likes to talk into an electric socket in Mrs. Reber's kitchen, which in his eyes is like a telephone.

When Mrs. Reber placed a shining electric toaster on the kitchen table, Chico strutted up and saw his reflection. Wishing to make an impression on the reflection he said, "Chico Reber, East Franklin street, Circleville." While talking into his light socket "telephone," Chico wished the whole world a "Merry Christmas."

Included in his repertoire are "pumpkin show," "let's eat dinner," names of all the family and many other words.

Mrs. Reber said that he loves television and when the audience laughs, Chico laughs right with them in his very educated bird-like way.

Jesus' Thanksgiving---and Ours

HE THANKED GOD THAT THE HUMBLE
ACCEPTED HIS TRUTH

Scripture—Matthew 11.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
WHY DO WE put people in prison? Because, of course, they have broken the laws of our land. They have been tried before a court before which testimony has been heard by the accused and the accusers. Occasionally there is what we call a "miscarriage of justice," and an innocent person may be condemned, but if so there is recourse to other tribunals before whom the innocence may be proven and the person released.

No person in free countries may be sent to prison by anyone in power without a fair trial. But in the case of John the Baptist it was different. In those days the ruler could clap a person in prison without a hearing before a court or "jury of his peers."

John had dared openly to criticize the ruler, Herod, for his licentious life, and the king had incarcerated him in a prison situated on the eastern side of the Dead Sea—as desolate and abandoned a spot as could be imagined.

John evidently was allowed to see some of his disciples, however, and he sent two of them to softly or in luxury. He said. He was a prophet and more than a prophet.

"Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist." Jesus then rebuked his generation. John the Baptist had led an ascetic life. He had spent his youth in the wilderness, eating simple, natural foods, dressed only in "raiment of camels hair, and a leathern girdle about his loins." But men said of him that he had a devil. Jesus ate with publicans and sinners, and it was said of him that he was "a man gluttonous, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners."

Then he began to upbraid the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done—Chorazin, Bethsaida, Capernaum—because they had heard His wisdom, seen His power, and yet rejected Him. They were worse than Tyre, Sidon and Sodom. They, having seen Christ's works, would have repented and been saved.

What did our Lord have to be thankful for? This was His prayer of thanks:

"I thank thee, O Father, Lord

MEMORY VERSE

"Jehovah hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."
—Psalm 126:3.

Jesus to ask a question which, in his solitude and inaction, had been worrying him: Was Jesus indeed the Christ as John had prophesied and preached, or should his people look for another?

This was a matter of great importance to John, of course, and it seems odd that doubts about Jesus' identity should have arisen in his mind, but he had much time to think and under the circumstances, who can blame him if doubts came. Other martyrs have suffered the same waverings while in his position.

The two men found Jesus and put the question:

"Art Thou He that should come, or do we look for another?"

Jesus did not give a direct answer. He said: "Go and show John again those things which ye do hear and see: The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached."

After the men had gone Jesus eulogized John the Baptist—more praise than He gave to any other person while He was on earth. John was not a man who lived of heaven and earth, because Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes."

The learned, the so-called wise and the rich had opposed His teachings, but the ignorant, the poor, the sick and hopeless had known Him and worshiped Him. We will close this most inadequate exposition of this lesson (which is all we have space for) with the exquisite and most comforting closing last words of this 11th chapter of Matthew:

"Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

"Take my yoke upon you, and learn of Me: for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

"For my yoke is easy, and My burden is light." How many million people all over the world have comforted themselves with this assurance when they have been borne down by grief, weary of their many burdens and almost in despair? With His help we can "find rest for our souls" in being "lowly and meek," as He was, and bearing our yokes as He bore His.

can be spent on "want to's". But the way to get the most out of the money you can spend is to ask yourself, "What do I want to do most with my money? Am I spending it on something I'll want and be glad I have a month or a year from now? Is it something I'll remember later as worth the money I spent on it?" If you really give it a little thought and are honest in answering yourself, you'll manage your money sensibly, spending it on worthwhile things you really want.

3. Once you get your "want to" spending figured, pay for it in regular installments—and make those installments "have to's". Save a dime, a quarter, a dollar a week, depending on what you've got. Stick to the schedule and don't let any temporary "want to" spending upset it.

Fanatical Red Assault Halted By Koreans

SEOUL, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Allied infantrymen smashed a fanatical Chinese assault Friday on Sniper Ridge and stopped lesser attacks elsewhere on the battle line.

A U. S. Eighth Army spokesman estimated 750 Chinese stormed the frozen, forbidding slopes of Sniper Ridge but were killed, wounded or driven back by stubborn South Korean troops who have lost and retaken the height 16 times in 38 days.

A Red battalion slammed against Pinpoint Hill, the dominating ground of Sniper Ridge Thursday night. The Communists supported their assaults with a tremendous barrage of mortar and artillery.

Within an hour, one company of Chinese pulled out and left two companies to push ahead. But by 10 p. m. the drive was blunted.

The Allied spokesman said four Communist armored vehicles, probably tanks, rained 50 caliber machine gun fire on Rok positions on Sniper just before midnight.

Allied artillery drove off the vehicles. It was cold, 10 degrees above zero.

Both sides kept up a crackling exchange of gunfire, and early Friday a suicide platoon of Chinese charged Sniper Ridge, hurling hand grenades when they got near the Rok foxholes. But the South Koreans held their ground and the Chinese pulled out.

Some Girls Ready To Wed At Age Of 15

LONDON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Girls should be permitted to marry at 15 if they are biologically ready, Dr. Marie Stopes, famed writer on marital problems, has suggested to a royal commission on marriage and divorce.

However, she said Thursday, she would not encourage such early marriages, she just thinks they should be legally possible.

"The present age limit of 16 is too high and ignores the biological tendency to marriage," Dr. Stopes said.

The expert, who is 72, said one-third or a fourth of Britain's girls are ready for marriage at 15.

"I've discovered that, biologically, British women are three main types: those who are fully mature and ready for childbearing at 15 or 16; the larger number—the average type—ready for marriage about 18 to 21; and those who can be married but who are not sexually mature until the age 27 to 30."

"Many of our grandmothers were happy brides at the age of 16 and even 15. When women are biologically capable of bearing a child, they should be legally capable of marrying."

Miners' Pay Hike Decision Seen Delayed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam may postpone until next week his decision on whether a $1.90 daily pay raise for soft coal miners is inflationary.

Putnam was reported Friday to have about decided to put off the ruling until next Monday or Tuesday. He had promised earlier to do

Today's Bride Better Cook Than Mother

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Today's bride is a better cook than her mother, or even her husband's mother. So says a woman who has spent her life teaching other women how to cook and trying to lift American culinary standards.

She is brisk, smiling Clara Snyder, consumer service consultant for the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers and wife of Dr. Lloyd Snyder, professor of farm economics at the University of Nebraska.

Mrs. Snyder has been in New York getting the results of a recent cook-book-recipe survey to determine what happens to the millions of recipes poured forth upon the U. S. public each year.

The research specialists came up with the disconcerting report that 24 per cent of U. S. housewives have no recipes at all in their homes, that older, experienced housewives rarely use recipes and that the most enthusiastic clippers and collectors of this form of literature are the younger, well-educated housewives in the upper income brackets.

Mrs. Snyder claims this is the

Rio Grande Quint Averaging 108

RIO GRANDE, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Little Rio Grande College, which has less than 200 students, is right proud of its basketball team. The Southern Ohio school won its fourth straight game Thursday night, beating Waynesburg, Pa., 108-70.

Leading Rio Grande to the four wins—as many as the school collected all last season—has been a six foot, nine inch freshman. He's Clarence Francis, an All-Ohio high school player last year. Francis has 193 points in four games for an average of 48 per game. The team's average is 108.

Taftites Wondering If They To Share Ike Appointments

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—(AP)—President-elect Eisenhower's choice of three pre-convention supporters for cabinet posts has left Taft Republicans wondering if they are going to share in the new administration's top jobs.

Eisenhower has six more cabinet places to fill, plus a half dozen or more jobs of almost equal rank, and backers of Sen. Robert A. Taft will be watching the President-elect's action closely.

Taft's friends found little to cheer about when Eisenhower announced Thursday his choice of John Foster Dulles of New York for secretary of state; Charles E. Wilson of Detroit, General Motors president, for secretary of defense; and Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon for secretary of the interior.

All were early supporters of Eisenhower in his successful battle with Taft for the presidential nomination.

Taft, asked to comment on the appointments, gave a curt "no comment" Thursday night. He said:

"Why should I be asked to comment on all appointments?"

Taft won a popout when Eisenhower named an industrialist to head the Defense Department. But the appointee didn't come from among three men reportedly suggested by the Ohioan.

The President-elect has yet to name publicly his choices for secretaries of the treasury, agriculture, commerce and labor, attorney general and postmaster general.

He apparently intends to make Joseph Dodge, Detroit banker, head of the Budget Bureau and reportedly wants Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts to serve him as a sort of assistant president, with rank of ambassador-at-large.

Other top jobs to be filled include those on the United Nations delegation, mutual security administrator, head of the Federal security Agency, three members of the Council of Economic Advisers, and defense mobilization and economic stabilization directors.

Most of those currently mentioned for major jobs were not pre-convention supporters of Taft.

In pagan times, Halloween was marked for placating the spirits of the dead and the resulting holiday was converted to All Saints' Day by the Christians.

everything possible to reach a decision this week.

The case came to Putnam on an appeal from a Wage Stabilization Board decision holding that only $1.50 of the miners' negotiated pay raise was approvable under the nation's wage controls. The board held that the extra 40 cents would be inflationary.

There was no indication of how Putnam would rule. If he upholds the WSB and rules that the extra 40 cents per day can't be paid the miners, they may walk out in protest.

A ruling reversing the WSB, on the other hand, would damage that agency's prestige and might lead to some resignations.

"China, the heart of Asia, was lost to the enemy. Whether it was lost by Roosevelt's listening to Hiss at Yalta; by Chiang's alleged intransigence; by Stilwell's petulance; by Marshall's somnolence; or by the chicanery and perhaps treachery of the Institute of Pacific Relations—all these we have debated with a good deal of light as well as heat.

The fact now is that the heart of Asia was lost, and virtually every American, except those who support the cause of Communism, now agrees with General MacArthur that this was a tragedy for which we shall be paying for generations."

General Eisenhower has no vested interests in the mistakes made in Asia. He had no part of those mistakes. Except for the short period, November 10, 1945-1948, when he was Chief-of-Staff, no Asiatic matter came before him.

With John Foster Dulles as Secretary of State, our country will have a knowledgeable man of high character and an intimate relationship with the East of Asia. It would be a good appointment from this standpoint, the China problem will remain with the United States throughout this Administration.

And what would be essential then would be to recognize the fact of war and to form firmer and tighter relations with our allies, South Korea, Formosa, Japan, the Philippines. War requires sharp and positive thinking if loss of life is to be minimized.

We have not had that concerning Asia, for two decades; it is essential now.

Byrd, Black Named Rookie Stars Of '52

Baseball Writers Tap Young Pitchers For Annual High Honors

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Joe Black of Brooklyn and Harry Byrd of Philadelphia A's, a pair of fine pitchers, were named Rookies of the Year Friday by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Black was an overwhelming choice in the National League with the 24-man committee that also placed him third in the most valuable player balloting.

Byrd, a late blooming hot shot, nosed out two catchers, Clint Courtney of the St. Louis Browns and Sam White of the Boston Red Sox, in a three-man race.

The feats of Black are well known to all because his relief work was largely responsible for the Dodgers pennant. An also-ran in spring training, Black appeared in only six games up to June 1. Then he started to work.

At stretches, Manager Charley Dressen had the Negro ace working every day. He wound up with 56 games, a 15-4 won and lost record and a low earned run average of 2.15.

THAT EARNED run mark was best in the league but it won't be recognized because he did not pitch 10 complete games or work at least 154 innings. He started only two games, one the last Saturday of the season as a tuneup for the World Series opener.

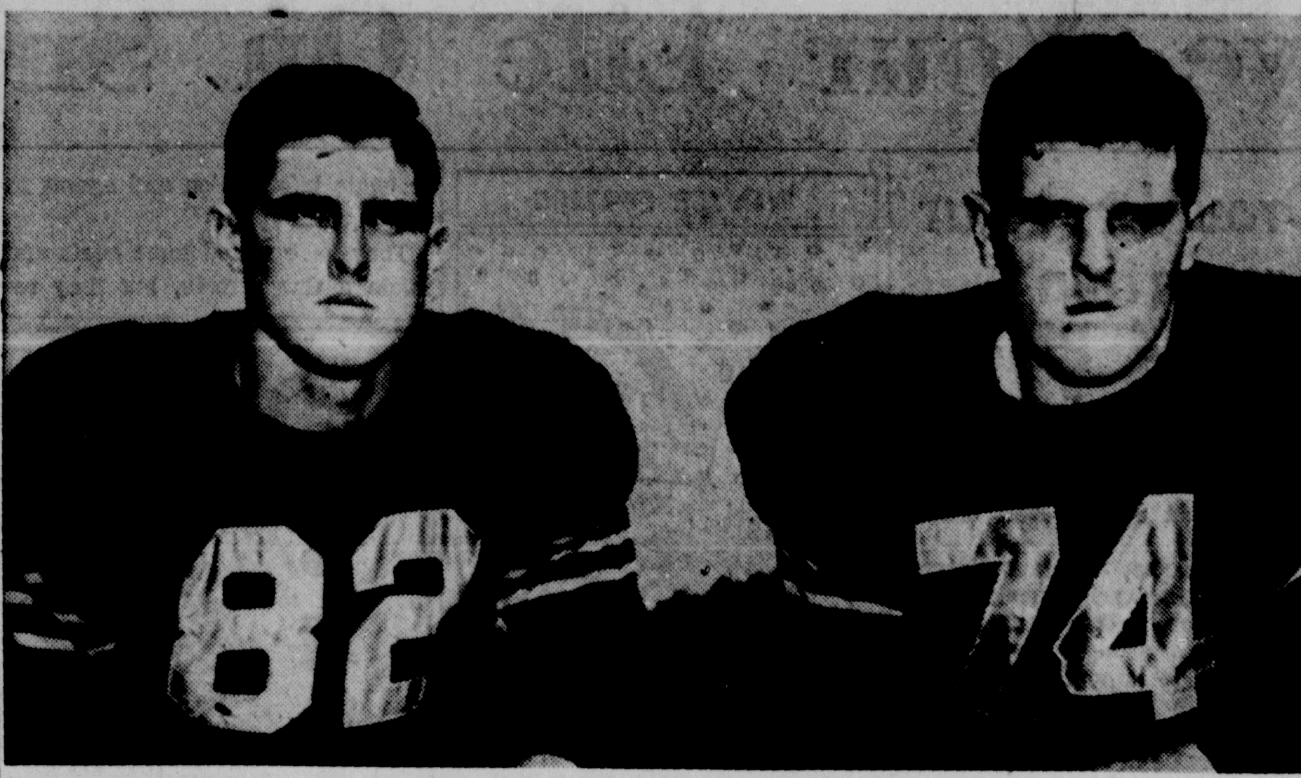

Hoyt Wilhelm, appearing in 71 games on relief for the New York Giants, was second to Black. He had a 15-3 record and his 2.43 earned run mark won the title. He didn't start once but he did work 159 innings.

Dick Groat, Pittsburgh's shortstop from Duke University, tied with Ed Mathews, Boston's third baseman. Groat joined the Pirates June 16 and finished with .285 after a slow start.

Mathews hit only .242 but he slammed 25 homers, three on Sept. 27 to set a record for a freshman.

The 1951 winners were Willie Mays of the Giants, now in service, and Gil McDougald of the New York Yankees.

Byrd made the big jump from Savannah of the South Atlantic League to the majors with great success. He finished with a 15-15 record, coming on strong in the late stages of the season. Thus the A's, with Byrd and Bobby Shantz, the most valuable player, cornered season honors in the American.

JIM AND RALPH STARKEY, outstanding players on Circleville's power teams a few seasons ago, are playing key roles in the football fortunes of the University of West Virginia this season. Jim Starkey, left, is second-string offensive end with West Virginia, while Ralph is the regular starting offensive tackle. Jim, a junior this year, is 218 and stands 6'4". Ralph, a senior with possibilities in the near future for professional ball, is 232 and stands 6'3". The rugged linemen, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Starkey of South Court street, are to be in action Saturday when West Virginia invades at South Carolina.

THE 27-YEAR-OLD right-hander from Darlington, S. C., pitched 15 complete games including three shutouts. On Sept. 7 he blanked the pennant-bound Yankees with one hit. During the month of September he lost 1-0 games to both New York and Cleveland. Still he didn't get his first starting chance until May 14.

Courtney and White gave him a real battle for the honors. Courtney, 25, moved up from Kansas City in the Yank-Browns trade that brought Jim McDonald to New York last November. The fiery bespectacled catcher climbed to .280 in August and finished at .286.

White, 24, came up from Class A, like Byrd. He hit only .267 in Scranton, Pa., of the Eastern League last season but belted the ball at a .300 clip into mid-August. Although he fell off in the closing months he finished with .281.

Olson Gives Salas Second Round KO

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Clever Carl (Bobo) Olson of Honolulu was established as the foremost contender for the world's middleweight title following his second-round knockout Thursday night of hard-punching Lee Sala of Donora, Pa.

The 23-year-old ringman flattened the Pennsylvania boy for the full count with a right to the jaw. The knockout came in 2:12 of the second. Sala had hit the canvas earlier in the same round for a nine-count.

'Beat Michigan' Theme Gets De-Emphasis On OSU Campus

COLUMBUS, Nov. 21.—Two years ago when Michigan invaded Ohio State University for a Big Ten football fracas, the theme "Beat Michigan" thundered over the campus.

Friday, one day before the Wolverines again tangle with the Buckeyes on OSU's home ground, that is not being heard.

Not that the desire to win is as strong or the hope less fervent. But Buckeye Coach Woody Hayes feels a "relaxed confidence" and "controlled enthusiasm" will be better for his boys than a lot of "hoopla." In other words, give Michigan the silent treatment.

Pictures of the Wolverines are absent from the locker room. Even newspaper clippings telling the sad, sad story of Michigan victories since 1944 are gone.

"Beat Michigan" signs are not splattered over buildings. There's a total absence of the usual "rock 'em; sock 'em" placards for the annual feud.

THURSDAY night, after an hour-long sweat - suit workout, team members gathered around the training table. They ate a hearty meal and sang songs. They were presented with flashy neckties by Training honors at Delaware Park's 1952 meeting ended in a deadlock between Oscar White and Frank A. Bonsal. Each saddled 10 winners.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 21.—Two years ago when Michigan invaded Ohio State University for a Big Ten football fracas, the theme "Beat Michigan" thundered over the campus.

Friday, one day before the Wolverines again tangle with the Buckeyes on OSU's home ground, that is not being heard.

Not that the desire to win is not as strong or the hope less fervent. But Buckeye Coach Woody Hayes feels a "relaxed confidence" and "controlled enthusiasm" will be better for his boys than a lot of "hoopla." In other words, give Michigan the silent treatment.

Pictures of the Wolverines are absent from the locker room. Even newspaper clippings telling the sad, sad story of Michigan victories since 1944 are gone.

"Beat Michigan" signs are not splattered over buildings. There's a total absence of the usual "rock 'em; sock 'em" placards for the annual feud.

THURSDAY night, after an hour-long sweat - suit workout, team members gathered around the training table. They ate a hearty meal and sang songs. They were presented with flashy neckties by

Chains, Plus Brains, Can Save Your Life On Snow, Ice

Safety Group Gives Advice On Driving

Synthetic Tires Skid More Than Natural Rubber

Brains plus chains equal sound advice on snow and ice!

That is a streamlined summary of the many important recommendations contained in "Basic Winter Driving Rules," a new booklet just published by the National Safety Council which sets down for the first time the results of 11 years of test research by the committee on winter driving hazards.

The booklet is aimed at reducing the high death and accident rates resulting from inadequate traction and reduced visibility — the major winter driving problems from now through February.

Six basic rules for safe winter driving are offered:

1. Get the feel of the road. Try your brakes occasionally, while driving slowly and away from other traffic, to find out just how slippery the road is.

2. SLOW down. Adjust your speed to road and weather conditions so that you can stop or maneuver safely.

3. Keep windshield clear. You must see danger to avoid it, so be sure your headlights, windshield wiper blades and defrosters are in top-notch condition.

4. Use tire chains on snow and ice. They cut stopping distances about in half, and increase starting and hill-climbing traction by four to seven times. Even with the help of chains, however, lower than normal speeds are a must on snow and ice.

5. Pump your brakes to slow down or stop. Jamming them on can lock the wheels and throw your car into a dangerous skid.

6. Follow at a safe distance. Keep well back of the car ahead so you have room to stop. Remember that without tire chains it takes three to 12 times as far to stop on snow and ice as on dry concrete.

Other important findings by the committee, composed of 33 experts in fields of automotive engineering, law enforcement and traffic safety education, include the following:

All tires, except big truck sizes, are now made largely of synthetic rubber. Synthetic tires wear better, perform normally on dry or wet pavements and have other advantages. But on snow and ice they skid about eight per cent further and have 14 to 35 per cent poorer forward traction ability than pre-war natural rubber tires.

Special Winter tires of 25 different types were tested for traction. The tests showed that, while some tires gave improved traction under certain conditions over conventional tires, their overall improvement is not great enough to warrant less caution when driving on slippery surfaces.

The same tests also demonstrated that special winter tire treads do not approach the performance of reinforced tire chains, and the report concludes that "while some of these tires can be considered a palliative, they certainly are not the answer to severe snow and ice conditions."

Dairy Shortage By Infertility Seen In Future

Is the United States heading toward a future shortage of dairy products because of declining dairy cow population and the increasing problem of breeding failures?

Terminating the infertility problem in dairy cattle a "serious menace to the nation's food supplies," experts say the total number of cows in the U.S. now is 12 per cent lower than in 1944, while our human population has increased 19 per cent.

Further, infertility problems of dairy cattle seem to be increasing and, at the same time, today's emphasis in cattle raising seems to be veering more toward beef, curtailing dairy production.

A Cornell university survey showed cattle infertility in New York alone caused an annual $20 million loss. These breeding failures result in lowered milk production, fewer replacements, for the 24 million dairy cattle now left in the nation.

INFERTILITY is merely a symptom of disease, or of functional disorder or heredity factors. Diseases chiefly responsible for breeding failures include brucellosis, trichomoniasis, and vibriosis. Faulty nutrition may also be a factor.

A program of having dairy animals given a health checkup at regular intervals is the top need in halting the present downward trend in reproduction.

Infertility can often be corrected by proper medical treatment. Hormones, anti-biotics, and nutritional correctives have helped to restore thousands of animals to normal production.

Ashville Group Elects Officers

Ashville - Lockbourne Lutheran Brotherhood met Wednesday night in Lockbourne St. Matthew's church with Leroy Kuhlwein presiding.

Following officers were elected for 1953: president, E. F. Martin; vice-president, Leroy Kuhlwein; treasurer, Edward Kuhlwein; secretary, Don Hafey; and corresponding secretary, Walter Wright.

The Brotherhood agreed to sponsor an annual banquet in Ashville January 21, 1953; and the Rev. Werner Stuck was appointed to secure a speaker.

Ben Duvall directed a discussion on how to increase church membership.

Next meeting will be held in Ashville First English church on Dec. 17 with a pot luck dinner to be served at 6:30 p. m.

County's Korean Vets Given Reminder On Compensations

James P. Shea, Pickaway County veterans service officer, reminded County's veterans of the Korean war that medical care and compensation claims can be filed after the date of their discharge.

"The county's Korean veterans should be on the alert for symptoms of ailments which weren't evident at the time of their separation from the armed forces," Shea said.

"Many diseases which cause disabilities within one year after a veteran's discharge are presumed to have had their inception in the service."

"And, in such cases, it's very likely the veteran would be entitled to medical care and compensation."

Shea said payments would probably be authorized in such cases if the veteran is found to be a victim of one of the diseases covered by the regulations.

INCLUDED in this list are the following:

Arthritis, hardening of the arteries, certain gall bladder and kidney ailments, cancer, high blood pressure, heart disease, various tumors and ulcers, and a score of other ailments. A number of tropical diseases also are covered by the rules.

Drought Near Proportion Of '34 Plague

WOOSTER, Nov. 21.—(AP)—The nationwide drought is rapidly approaching the size of one which plagued the country between 1934 and 1936, an agricultural official says.

W. E. Krause, assistant director of the Wooster Agricultural Experiment Station, pointed out that in the previous drought the country was forced to import large quantities of grain to feed livestock. He declared:

"We may be in an importing condition by next spring, despite our huge wheat and corn crops, if the dry conditions continue."

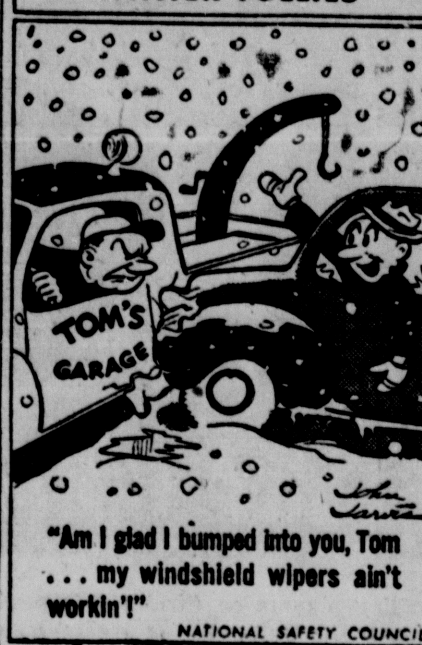

Krause recently returned from a Washington meeting where the drought was discussed by land grant college heads. He said the rainfall in Ohio has been 4.12 inches below normal for the period from August up to the present.

Experts at the agricultural station report wheat crops may be endangered unless there is a good snowfall or rain before freezing temperatures arrive for good. In addition, producing livestock are threatened with insufficient water and dry forest lands present a fire hazard.
